Beaver Favors the Reopening of the Soldiers' Orphans' Schools,

SOME PERPETUAL BENEFICIARIES.

The Governor Wants the Capital Stock of Manuf turing Corporations Taxed.

A movement is on foot to have the Soldiers and Sailors Orphaus' Schools reopened for the admission of pupils. The idea is favored by Governor Beaver, who believes that the orphans of soldiers need educating now as much as those who were born some years before them. The Governor has angered some manufacturers by suggesting that their capital stock should be taxed. Appropriations will probably be made by the present Legislature for the second geological survey and the State Normal schools. Republicans are congratulating themselves on the non-passage of the apportionment bill last session, by which they would have lost four Senators.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH 1 HARRISBURG, January 5.- The action of the committee of the Grand Army of the Republic in recommending the passage of an act looking to the education and mainand sailors now in the several orphans' schools of the State until they shall have arrived at the age of 16 years, has not put an end to the purpose of persons financially interested in these institutions to have them reopened for the admission of new pupils. None have been admitted since June 1, 1887, as an act passed in that year barred any further accessions to the rolls after that date. The same law provided for the close of the schools on the 1st of June, 1890.

The Grand Army of the Republic, which has taken much interest in the proper care A Strong and Pointed Answer to the Mcof the destitute children of soldiers, has come to the conclusion that a great hardship would be imposed upon the younger pupils by discharging them in June, 1890, and a committee appointed by it has recommended that the institutions finally terminate on June 1, 1895, by which time nearly all now in the schools would be 16 years old and

RECOMMENDATIONS WILL BE RATIFIED. The recommendations of the committee will no doubt be ratified at the meeting of the Grand Eucampment at Erie to be held soon, unless that body should listen to the appeals being made for the reopening of the Governor Beaver has given the managers of these institutions great encouragement in that portion of his message referring to to the soldiers' orphan schools, in which he says: "It is difficult to see why any distinction should be made among these chil-dren. Those who are orphans now are as needy and deserving as those who received the benefits of the system ten or more years

This argument will be used industriously by the managers of the schools with the Grand Army in the hope of having it declare at its next encampment in favor of reopening the schools. They claim that the strong and increasing demand made by parents and friends of soldiers' children who have been barred out of schools, for

PRESSURE ON THE GRAND ARMY. An individual who profits by these schools pecuniarily remarked recently that the Grand Army would not be able to withstand the pressure that would be brought to bear on it in the interest of the reopening of the schools. So long as children of soldiers and sailors were admitted on proof that they were destitute, there was no necessity to invoke the Grand Army's aid, but since the Legislature has shut out children not old enough to enter the schools before the time fixed for the termination of admissions, and deprived them of the privileges enjoyed by those who had the good luck to be born in advance of them, the different posts in the State are said to have received many urgent appeals for the accommodation of these un-fortunate children. This pressure, said the gentleman referred to, will increase in in-tensity as the number of destitute children of soldiers and sailors increases, and is like-ly to change the purpose of the Grand Army not to ask for the reopening of the schools.

If the advocates of the extension of the system of soldiers' orphan schools should be successful, it could be made to last at least ten years longer, entailing an aggregate ex-pense of the State of between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000. THE COST OF THE SYSTEM.

When the law was passed providing for the education and maintenance of soldiers the education and maintains, it was supposed that and sailors' orphans, it was supposed that the system established would end in about ed upon to fulfill their engagenests. Their the system established would end in about 12 years, the admissions being then confined to children whose fathers had died in the service of their country. The liberalization of the original act, by supplementary legislation at various times, resulted in continuing the system 15 years beyond the time contemplated by the legislation which started it, and if the movement being pushed to reopen the schools should be successful, 25 years would be added to the time at which the State's beneficence to the children of Union soldiers and sailors was to have

The schools were started in April, 1865, and until December 1, of that year, $103,000 had been expended on them. The expenses the two following years reached an average of $310,000. For the year ended June 1, 1869, they amounted to $500,000, and the next year to $514,000. There was a drop of $5,000 the following year, and from that tame to June 1, 1888, the expenses annually ranged from $303,000 to $475,000. The total cost of the system to June 1, 1888, was $8,993,919 02, while there remained a balance to the credit of the Soldiers' orphan department of $346,922 77, making an aggregate appropriation by the State of $9,290,753 73. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company made the first contribution toward the establishment of these schools, amounting to $50,000.

BEAVER ON CORPORATIONS.

Wants the Tax Law Exempting the Capital Stock of Manufactures Repealed.

PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. HARRISBURG, January 5 .- In discussing the tax legislation of the State, in his message, Governor Beaver has given offense to manufacturing corporations, whose capital stock the revenue act of 1885 exempts from taxation. While the Governor does not name these corporations as having been wrongfully relieved of taxation, he makes the sweeping declaration that the "exemptions heretofore attempted have been made not only without authority but are, the Con-

appropriations which tend to the immediate relief of the real estate of our citizens."

By the exemption of the capital stock of manufacturing corporations from taxation the State loses annually about $300,000. The Grangers are with the Governor in his suggestion of the repeal of legislation exempting "several species of property" from taxation, as they think corporations have been too much favored by Pennsylvania law-

PERPETUAL BENEFICIARIES. The Second Geological Survey and the Stat

Normal Schools. PEPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] HARRISBURG, January 5 .- Another demand will be made this winter for an appropriation to continue the second geological survey, which has already cost the State stitutions created with the understanding that its duration of life would be brief, but the Legislature, for many years, has regularly made an appropriation for its continuance, and the chances are that it will not depart from its custom during the pres-

The State Normal schools, like the second reological survey, promises to be perpetual beneficiaries of the State, notwithstanding the fact that when the first appropriation was made to put them in operation, the argument was freely used that they would be self-sustaining. The State is still paying them $50,000 a year to keep them affoat, and an appropriation of $100,000, if not more, by the present Legislature, to maintain them the next two years is almost certain.

A SUBJECT FOR CONGRATULATION.

Republicans Gain Senators by the Failure of the Appertionment Bill to Pass. [SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATUR.] HARRISBURG, January 5 .- The Republicans in the Legislature are congratulating themselves on the fact that the Senatorial tenance of nearly all the children of soldiers apportionment of two years ago did not ass. Senator Cooper was then of the opinion that the hill would lose the Republicans two Senators, but if it had been in operation at the last election the party would have four less members of the Senate than the roll now shows.

No bill apportioning the State into Senatorial districts will be passed at this session, as the taking of the United States census is too near at hand (1890) to justify the appor-tionment so long delayed.

MR. TORREYSON TACKLED.

Keesporter's Statement.

Thursday morning's DISPATCH contained an article in the sporting column which rather reflected on the standing and stability of the Allegheny County League, and was entirely uncalled for, and came from a source which is certainly not the fountain head of sporting and baseball knowledge. Mr. Torreyson, although a genial gentleman, is certainly not a success as a genial gentleman, is certainly not a success as a baseball manager, and, therefore, his opinion or expression of his opinion on the county league can be rated accordingly.

In the first place, the McKeesport Club was not solicited to become a member of the league, but was simply asked to become an applicant for membership, and to take their chances with other applicants, when their application would be voted on at the initial meeting of the league, which will take place some time in the latter part of January. The four clubs composing the County League will decide who the successful applicants will be, and the chances of McKeesport becoming a member were decidedly slight, as most of the delegates who will represent their respective clubs at the meeting have experienced some of Mr. Torreyson's management—or rather indismanagement—and feel decidedly sore on that point.

Mr. Torreyson made rather a broad statement in asserting that none of the present club, with the exception of the Fast End Athletics, were solvent. The writer for one will say that the Homestead club took in three times the amount of money at one game last summer that the McKeesport club would take in two amount of money at one game last summer that the McKeesport club would take in two or three games, and it goes without saying, the East End Athletics did even better on their own grounds. As for the Braddocks and Duown grounds. As for the Braddocks and Duquesnes, of course, they were under a disadyantage on account of not having enclosed grounds, but they were both backed by responsible parties, who always had their respective teams on the field on time and always had enough money to pay their car fare. The County League of the season of 187 was a success in every particular, and the only reason to which we can attribute Mr. Torreyson's poor opinion of the organization is that it is the old story of sour grapes, and Mr. T. is huffed that his club was not one of the charter members. Although not caring to throw cold water on a new organization, still Mr. Torreysonsaying he would prefer to join the Western Pennsylvania League to the local one, brings up the question would prefer to join the Western Pennsylvania League to the local one, brings up the question of the probable success of this new league. According to the writer's opinion (and he has had experience in nearly all the towns belonging to the Western Pennsylvania League) the League will not be in existence by August 1, 1889; that is, it will not have its present membership, and someone will be out of pocket considerably. The lack of proper railroad facilities, no enclosed grounds and inexperience are bound to tell. Hoping, however, that this prophecy will not come true to our brother organization, and living in the expectation of seeing the amateur base ball season of '89 in Pittsburg and vicinity boom far beyond previous seasons, I remain,

'HOMESTEAD HEARD FROM. Manager Jones Replies to Charges Made

Against the County Lengue. The managers of the Homestead Baseball Club are very much incensed over an article that appeared in Thursday's DISPATCH, wherein Frank Torreyson makes the statement that "the East End Athletics is the only really solvent club in the Allegheny County League, and one great fault of the County League clubs usual excuse is they haven't their car fare."

Manager Jones says that the Homestead club is backed by the Riverside Park Company, and he thinks the club is as solvent as even Mr. Torreyson could wish. He states further that every club visiting Homestead last season, without exception, had their car fare paid by his club. Not one club belonging to the league ever missed an engagement during the season. In one instance, he says, the Homestead club had their car fare guaranteed by the Quicksteps, of Johnstown, and when they visited that place the Quicksteps refused either to play or pay their guarantee, and he was out of pocket $46. That is the only failure in paying car fare that came to his notice.

He also believes that because the Allegheny County League clubs decline to go into a scheme to organize a Western State League that some parties are doing all they can to bring the County League into contempt, but they will not succeed. The County League will meet early this month and begin the season with eight clubs, and it is more than probable that one of them will not be the McKeesport club. usual excuse is they haven't their car fare."

RECALLS OLD TIMES. Jimmy Grimshaw, the Once Famous Jockey, Dies in Bohemin.

The English jockey James Grimshaw, the Archer of his time, died at Pardubitz, Bohemia, on December 12. The cause of death was cancer, from which he had been a great sufferer for some time previously. Until sick-ness overtook him his skill as a rider never deserted him, and he rode and trained in Germany, Austria and Russia with great success. The expense attending the medical and surgical treatment of his malady absorbed all his money, and he died leaving a widow and six children unprovided for. In the "sixties" Grimshaw was the fashionable light-weight of the day, and his skill in the saddle caused his services to be in much request. In 1865, out of 361 mounts he rode 114 winners. His brother Henry, who came to such an untoward end Henry, who came to such an untoward end through being thrown out of a cig, was also a well-known jockey in his time, but though he rode Giadiateur to victory in the Derby, he was never the rage like his younger brother, James. Grimshaw's chief attributes were judgment and knowledge of pace, added to unusual strength for his weight, and it was by this means that he was often, as in the case of Thalestris in the Cesarewitch, enabled to hold his horse together, and ro on when other lads

The capital stock of manufacturing corporations is included among the subjects to which he refers in his message when he says: "If (in addition to the changes which the Governor recommends in the act of 1879) provision were made for the collection of taxes from these several species of property declared to be exempt by the Legislature, and such as are in effect exempt because not mentioned in existing legislation, we would have ample revenue for all the ordinary purposes of the Commonwealth, and could extend yet further in different directions the his horse together, and go on when other lads

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

That Will Fill the Magnificent New Edifice at Braddock.

CARNEGIE'S GIFT SUPPLEMENTED

By the Purchase of Over 1,700 New Books All of High Class.

WHAT THEDIVERSE EDITIONS COMPRISE

The suburban borough of Braddock, which, by the way, wants to become a part about $1,300,000. This was one of the in- of the greater city of Pittsburg, is occupied mainly by the employes of the great mills and forges which lie within its boundary lines. Physical strength may seem to many, under these circumstances, to be the predominating power. Yet with it there is enough intellectuality and acumen to collect one of the finest public libraries in the country. An excellent judge, who had glanced over the catalogue of books which had been culled, says that the selection reflects great credit upon the committee in charge of the work. The Carnegie Free Library at Braddock will be thrown open to the public within a short time. The choice of the selection of books was not an easy one, as there was no nucleus of a library around which the substantial additions could be gathered. Chairman Gailey, of the committee, wrote logue of works which he received from A LIBRARY WAS SELECTED. The purchase of these books devolved upon Mr. H. Watts, the Wood street bookseller. There are between 1,700 and 1,800 volumes. A reporter called at his store yesterday in order to learn about the style of reading material selected. Mr. Watts was very enthusiastic over the work accomplished, and also sounded high praises for the class of books chosen for the Braddock reading rooms.

The catalogue includes the best of every class of works. Books on manufacturing and mechanical arts occupy a high posi-tion. The sciences are not forgotten, and a list of the most learned men's works were chosen. The finer arts are represented, and books of travel are carefully selected.

Biographies are a favorite, and there are more of this class of works than any other, with fiction excepted. The latter class of writings is widely varied, and includes about every style of novel, from the works of "The Duchess" and E. P. Roe, to the novels of Dickens, Scott, Holmes, Howells and Thackeray. The higher classes of novels are the favorites. Works which have a pernicious and degrading tendency are carefully excluded. The list is not, however, yet completed. more of this class of works than any other,

WORKS REALLY INSTRUCTIVE. There is an unusually large number o works of reference, dictionaries and books of that style. Religious writings are evi-dently not very popular, as this list is not large. The best selection of histories obtainable has been made.

Lovers of poetry will be regaled with the writings of Longiellow, Byron, Tennyson, Burns and a long list of others of the best English and American poets. The essays of Carlisle, Emerson and a host of others will Watts was told to purchase none but the best, and that no cheap editions were wanted. The 1,700 books already bought will cost about $3,000. The books are to be delivered at Braddock by January 15, and the opening of the building will take place as soon after this date as possible. Mr. Andrew Carnegie, the donor of the building and library, will make an address, as will alseveral prominent citizens of Braddock.

Our Art Department is now in the Fifth avenue annex, while our Embroidery and White Goods Departments are still in the Market street store, but both greatly enlarged. ANNUAL CLEARANCE SALE

We start to-morrow our Annual Stock Taking Clearance Sale. By this announcement we mean BARGAIN PRICES IN EVERY DE-PARTMENT. Such a large business as we do naturally results in an accumulation of odds and ends, broken lines of goods which cannot be renewed, and surplus stock of winter goods. We MUST SELL THEM AT ANY PRICE, because we need the room for spring importations now arriving. The GREATEST REDUCTIONS have been made in the following articles:

LADIES' CLOAKS AND WRAPS! Many of them at less than half the former prices.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

YESTERDAY our stores were crowded, jammed, thronged, packed. Our WHITE OPENING did it. All the ladies seemed delighted with our beautiful display and low prices. The only complaints were that we limit the quantities which we will sell to any one customer. We were asked: "Why do you refuse to sell more than ten yards of muslin to one purchaser?" "Why will you sell only three corset covers to one buyer?" "Why do you decline to furnish more than four gowns to any one customer?"

He would be a poor General who should supply the enemy with the cannons and guns, and powder and shot, and ammunitions of war, to be used against himself. We should be poor merchants to allow dealers to pick up the bargains which we have secured for the benefit of our customers. We do not propose to furnish dealers with goods at less prices than they can go into the Eastern markets and buy them, and thus in a short time exhaust our stock, and disappoint our customers. Many of these goods were bought and paid for months ago for the
